

The Stompin' Tom Sound

Compared to some of the other great legends who came from Canada, I think that Tom Connors was probably the most unique.

He was a little bit Country-Western.....

He was a little bit Eastern-Canadian.....

He was a little bit Bluegrass.....

He was a little bit Irish-Folk.....

He was a little bit Punk-Rock.....

Stompin' Tom created his own style,
and his own way of performing to an audience.

There's no doubt that he loved living in Canada, and singing about people and places that were in fact Canadian.....

But I think that Tom also had a universal appeal about himself... and his work deserves to be discovered by music fans from all around the world.
